Executive Summary

• This report describes the results of a visitor study at Mesa Verde National Park during the week of July 19-25, 1987. Questionnaires were given to 850 visitors and 358 were returned, a 42% response rate.

• The report is in two volumes. Volume 1 provides a statistical profile of the people who visited Mesa Verde. Volume 2 has their general comments about the park (a summary is included in this volume).

• Visitors were most likely to be in family groups of two to four people. Most visitors were making their first visit to Mesa Verde. The majority of visitors came from Colorado, California and Texas. German tourists formed a significant proportion of foreign visitors.

• Most visitors stayed two days. Motorized travel on park roads, visiting or viewing cliff dwellings and ruins were their most common activities.

• The sites that received the greatest proportion of all visitors were the Museum and Cliff Palace. Forty-four percent of Far View Visitor Center visitors stopped at the Visitor Center first.

• The average per capita expenditure for the two days was approximately $18.00. The most common visitor group expenditure was from $1-50.00, though the average group expenditure was approximately $63.00 per visit.

• Fifty-eight percent of visitors viewed the Far View Visitor Center exhibits, with the majority rating them very to moderately useful. Twenty-three percent of the respondents felt that more information facilities are needed at Mesa Verde. The park entrance and nearby communities were commonly suggested locations.

• The nearby communities of Cortez, Durango, and Farmington together accounted for 56% of visitor places of origin on their arrival day as well as for 42% of visitor destinations on their departure day from Mesa Verde.

• A total of 43% of the respondents indicated that they had purchased items from the park's bookstore. The major reasons for their purchases were for keeping as souvenirs and to aid with their visit.

• Besides saying that they enjoyed their visit, visitors commented about the park's friendly or helpful employees and that they would like to or plan to visit again.

INTRODUCTION

This report describes the results of a visitor mapping study undertaken at Mesa Verde National Park (referred to as 'Mesa Verde') conducted the week of July 19-25, 1987 by the Cooperative Park Studies Unit at the University of Idaho, as a part of its Visitor Services Project. A list of Visitor Services Project publications is included on the inside back cover of this report.

After this Introduction, the Methods are presented, along with the limitations to the study. The Results follow, including a summary of visitor comments. Next, a Menu for Further Analysis is provided to help managers in requesting additional analyses. Finally, Appendix A contains the questionnaire used. Volume 2 of this report contains comments made by visitors who returned the questionnaires.

Many of the graphs in this report are like the example on the following page. The large numbers refer to explanations below the graph.

1: The figure title provides a general description of the information contained in the graph.
2: A note above gives the 'N', or number of cases in the sample, and a specific description of the information in the chart.
3: The vertical information describes categories.
4: The horizontal information shows the number of items that fall into each category. In some graphs, proportions are shown.
5: In most graphs, percentages are included to provide additional explanation.
METHODS

General strategy

Questionnaires were distributed to a sample of randomly selected visitors entering Mesa Verde during July 19-25, 1987. Visitors completed the questionnaire during their trip and then returned it by mail. Returned questionnaires were analyzed and this report developed.

Questionnaire design

The questionnaire asked visitors to record where they went, what they did and how much money they spent (see Appendix A for a copy of the questionnaire). The questionnaire followed the standard format used in previous Visitor Services Project studies. Visitors expressed their opinions on the usefulness of exhibits and where additional information facilities should be located if needed. Visitor origins on their arrival day, their departure day destinations; and their rationale for park bookstore purchases were also determined. Space was provided for respondents' comments.

Sampling

Visitors were sampled at the entrance gate to Mesa Verde. All traffic must stop at the gate and non-visitors (i.e. NPS employees, concessionaire and construction workers) were easily excluded from the sample.

The sample size was based upon 1986 visitor counts, the entrance station's operating hours and staff availability. One vehicle in every ten was sampled. A total of 863 questionnaires were distributed.
Questionnaire administration

Hand counters were used at the entrance gate to record traffic and at the specified interval, the NPS employees would approach the vehicle's occupants. Visitor groups were greeted, briefly introduced to the purpose of the study, and asked to participate. If they consented, further instructions were given. An adult was asked to complete the questionnaire for the group.

Data analysis

A cut-off date was established for incoming questionnaires approximately ten weeks following distribution. Questionnaires arriving within this period were coded and entered into a computer. Frequency distributions and cross-tabulations were calculated using a standard statistical software package. Respondents' comments were summarized.

Sample size, missing data and reporting errors

Occasionally, a respondent may not have answered all of the questions in the questionnaire, or may have answered some incorrectly. Unanswered questions create missing data and cause the number in the sample to vary from figure to figure. For example, although 358 questionnaires were returned, Figure 1 shows data for only 351 respondents.

Questions answered incorrectly due to carelessness, misunderstanding directions and so forth, turn up in the data as reporting errors. These create small data inconsistencies. For example, it is possible that some of the visitors' activities occurred outside of the park - they may not have understood to report only those activities done within the park.

Limitations

Like all surveys, this study has limitations which should be taken into account when interpreting the results.

1. All visitors were asked to record sites visited and activities, however, it is not possible to know whether their responses reflect actual behavior. This disadvantage is applicable to all such studies and is reduced by having visitors fill out the questionnaire as they visit the park.

2. The data reflect the use patterns of visitors during the designated study period of July 19-25. The results do not necessarily apply to visitors using the park during different times of the year.

3. Data are not collected on non-respondents. Thus, it is not known if the visitors who returned their questionnaires differ from those who did not.
RESULTS

A. Visitors contacted

Eight hundred and sixty-three visitor groups were contacted, and 850 agreed to participate. Thus, the acceptance rate was 98%. Three hundred and fifty-eight of the visitor groups completed and returned their questionnaires, a 42% response rate. These acceptance and response rates are comparable to the average acceptance rate (97%) and the average response rate (43%) of previous visitor mapping studies.

B. Visitor characteristics

Figure 1 shows the group sizes, which ranged from one to 34 people. The most common group size was two people. Nearly three-fourths of the visitors came in family groups, as shown in Figure 2; hence couples represent a common visitor population.

Figure 3 shows that there was a wide range of age groups represented; the most common were children under 11 years old and adults from 36 to 40 years old; 14% were seniors over 55 years of age. For 74% of the visitors, this was their first visit to Mesa Verde, although Figure 4 shows a small, but significant amount (5%) of returnees who have visited the park many times.

Visitors came from many different locations within the United States. Map 1 shows that most U.S. visitors originated from the eight states around Mesa Verde (i.e. Colorado, Utah, Kansas, New Mexico, Arizona, Texas, Oklahoma and California). Five percent of all visitors were from foreign countries (see Table 1 and Map 2); 50% of foreign visitors were from Germany.

C. Visitor use of time

Figure 5 illustrates that most visitors (64%) stayed in Mesa Verde for less than one day, although 19% stayed two days.

D. Visitor activities

Figure 6 shows the proportion of visitor groups who engaged in each activity during the first two days of their visit. Activities pursued by the majority of visitor groups included motorized travel on park roads (92%), visiting cliff dwellings and ruins (88%), viewing cliff dwellings and ruins (88%), shopping (47%) and resting (40%).

N=358 visitor groups; percentages do not equal 100 because visitors could report more than one activity.
E. Visitor expenditures

Figure 7 shows the amount of money visitor groups spent during their visit to the Mesa Verde area. Although 15% of visitor groups did not spend any money, 54% spent $1-50.00. The average visitor group expenditure was approximately $63.00; the average per capita amount spent was approximately $18.00.

Figure 8 shows the proportion of visitor group expenditures by category in the Mesa Verde area. The purchase of "other" items accounted for 37% of the total expenditures (e.g. film and gifts).

Figures 10 - 13 show the range of visitor group expenditures by category. Visitor groups commonly spent $1-25.00 on lodging and $1-25.00 on travel. Over three-quarters of visitor groups spent $1-25.00 on food. Although expenditures varied somewhat, over two-thirds of visitor groups spent $1-25.00 on "other" items.

F. Visitor locations

Map 3 shows the proportion of visitor groups that stopped at each site. The largest proportion of visitor groups stopped at the Museum (73%), Cliff Palace (73%), Spruce Tree House (66%) and the Far View Visitor Center (62%). Map 4 shows the proportion of all visitor groups who visited each site first. Fifty percent of visitor groups made the Far View Visitor Center their first stop, while 18% first stopped at the Museum and 15% at Cliff Palace.

The order in which visitor groups stopped at sites during their visit is shown in Figures 13-22. Far View Visitor Center visitor groups commonly made it their first stop. Step House visitor groups varied widely in the order of their stops at the site. Balcony House visitor groups stopped there toward the middle of their visit, as did visitor groups stopping at Badger House Community. Visitor groups to the Museum, Spruce Tree House, Cliff Palace, and Long House all stopped at each site early in their visits. Visitor groups to the Soda Point area stopped there later in their visit.

G. Special question 1: Usefulness ratings of Far View Visitor Center exhibits

The survey asked visitors to rate the exhibits viewed in the Far View Visitor Center. A five point scale was provided: 1 = extremely useful, 2 = very useful, 3 = moderately useful, 4 = somewhat useful and 5 = not useful. Fifty-eight percent of visitor groups indicated that they viewed the exhibits. Figure 23 shows that while 39% of the respondents felt the exhibits were very useful, 34% felt that the exhibits were moderately useful.
H. Special question 2: Visitor opinions about the need for additional information facilities

Visitors were asked to indicate if additional information facilities were needed, and if so, where. Figure 24 shows that 56% felt that such facilities were not required and 23% expressed their desire for more. Figure 25 shows visitor groups suggested that information should be provided at the park entrance (49%) and in the nearby communities (32%).

I. Special question 3: Visitor origins on their arrival day

Visitors were asked where they started their trip on the day they arrived in Mesa Verde. Table 2 shows the state from which most visitor groups started their trip; 73% of the visitor groups began in Colorado. Table 3 shows the largest proportion of visitor group starting places (56%) were the nearby communities of Cortez, Durango and Farmington.

K. Special question 5: Reasons for purchasing bookstore items

Visitors were asked why they made bookstore purchases. Forty-three percent of the visitor groups indicated they had purchased items. Figure 26 shows that 69% intended to keep the items as souvenirs and 57% intended to use them to aid in their visit.

L. Summary of visitor comments - Introduction

Volume 2 of this report contains unedited comments made by visitors. A summary of these comments appears below, but it is also included within Volume 2. Some comments offer specific suggestions regarding what visitors like or dislike, while others contain general impressions. A wide variety of topics are discussed, including natural features, cultural sites, facilities, interpretation services, personnel, and maintenance.

MENU FOR FURTHER ANALYSIS

This report contains only some of the information that can be provided by the results of this study. By combining characteristics such as site visited, group size, day visited, and so forth, many further analyses can be made. Park personnel may wish to see other tables, graphs, and maps in order to learn more about the visitors. This menu is provided so that the ordering of further data can be done easily. Two kinds of analyses are available:

1) Two-way comparisons compare two characteristics at a time. For example, if knowledge is desired about which activities a particular age group engaged in, a comparison of activity by age group could be requested; if knowledge about which sites received a greater portion of use each day was required, you could request a comparison of site visited by visit day.

2) Three-way comparisons compare a two-way comparison to a third characteristic. For example, if knowledge was desired about the different activities of visitors to each site each day, a comparison of (activity by site visited) by visit day could be requested; if knowledge about which age groups were participating in an activity at a particular site was required, a comparison of (age group by activity) by site visited could be requested.

In the first section of the sample order form found on the page after next is a complete list of the variables for which information was collected from the visitors to your park. Below the list are a series of two blanks that are provided for specifying the additional variables that are to be requested in two-way comparisons. Simply select the characteristics of interest from the variable list and write in the names of the other variables desired in the adjacent spaces. Blank order forms are provided for tearing out and completing, as shown in the sample.

Should a three-way comparison be required, the next section of the order form provides blanks for specifying each of the three variables of interest. Simply write down the names of those specific characteristics required from the above list for each comparison requested. For example, if a comparison of activity by group type by age group is required, each of these characteristics should be listed in the space provided on the order form.

I feel more rangers were needed at Cliff Palace for informational purposes.

Could the Channeled Drainage system that irrigated the farming terraces be reactivated? The technology is intriguing and possibly, with some effort, still viable.

At Park Point, the facility should be upgraded so that one could truly have a 360° view. Include a circular table with the various main points of interest. The view is spectacular and should be really improved.

Ten years ago it was possible to go closer to the parts of the cliff dwellings. This was more impressive. All the same, it is a very beautiful park.

Since we came over from Europe last week we have already seen a few great national parks (Zion, Bryce Canyon, Grand Canyon) so we thought Mesa Verde wouldn't be so spectacular as the other ones. But this was certainly not true.

It was different, but we certainly enjoyed it as much as the other parks. We think the museum showed everything we needed.

10. Is there anything else you would like to tell us about your visit to Mesa Verde National Park?

I think this is one of the more useful, productive, educational and rewarding uses of my tax money.

(9:00 trip Balcony house - middle aged female - very good)

The ranger was very knowledgeable and seemed to really enjoy her work (I'd love to do it, too). I have visited this place since I read "A Book of Indians" as a young girl.

It told of the various Indian groups in America. I was fascinated by the ladders as an escape route. I am a teacher and this trip gave me many insights into a bygone culture (for at least a part of their past).

You might consider a short video presentation for people who don't have much background.

We enjoyed visiting the ruins!

Mesa Verde was one of the outstanding places we visited. The ranger told us you are considering doing away with Balcony House tour as it is not cost effective. Please find a way to keep that tour in.

10. Is there anything else you would like to tell us about your visit to Mesa Verde National Park?

The cost of entrance on the sign at the entrance is wrong. It needs to be charged from $2.00 per person -- there was 2 in our party & it cost $5.00. The cost is not the idea, but the excuse the guide gave was ridiculous and she was serious! While vacationing it helps when you don't feel like you're being ripped off! Every penny counts.

10. Is there anything else you would like to tell us about your visit to Mesa Verde National Park?

I enjoyed this visit as I did 50 years ago. I was a little disappointed to find that quite a few of the cliff ruins are now self-guided tours with ranger at the ruins instead of totally ranger guided. I was pleased to see that more ruins are now open to the public (whether or not I enjoyed those).

10. Is there anything else you would like to tell us about your visit to Mesa Verde National Park?

   All new in-camping campers should be allowed in only until 9:00 as the noise late-campers make is incredible. Also, long loops should be reserved as “quiet areas” with no animals (pets) allowed. Quiet hours need to be enforced.

   Enjoyed the visit. Balcony House was too hard a climb for us to try so we went to the lookout. The deer were fun to watch.

   Rangers have been great; roads vastly improved since 1975, more than adequate interpretive literature.

In Tiger's Dell, I carry a futon with no air mattress in my motorcycle. Had to move the tent off the cliff into the back rock. You try sleeping on that.

I talked to the ranger, it made no difference. I think exception should have been made. Considering my trip.

We especially enjoyed the animals. We saw many deer which were close enough to photograph. Most of the roads were too far up and down for bicycles, people to hike to see this high altitude or elevation.

10. Is there anything else you would like to tell us about your visit to Mesa Verde National Park?

We enjoyed our visit very much. Especially enjoyed the drive as we did not have to compete with large R.V.s and tour buses. Routes well marked. We appreciate the National Park System.

We just moved to Cortez Co. from Ohio last year. We have brought guests to the park to visit. I have visited it ourselves several times. This time was unusual—we went up there specifically to go camping & to attend an "Indians program " Shield--this this weekend. It's our first time to camp there—were impressed with the campgrounds. For the park itself—there is a lot of helpful information available in the park about all the dwellings you can see.

10. Is there anything else you would like to tell us about your visit to Mesa Verde National Park?

For our visit (i.e., to enter the park @ 4:30 PM) many things (roads, exhibits, etc.) closed @ 6 PM - we missed them.

Thank you for your help. Please seal the questionnaire with the sticker provided and drop it in any U.S. mailbox -- no postage is needed.

We think the park system and the organization behind works very well compared to the one at Grand Canyon. At the entrance, we saw all the facts, but you may need at your arrival, like big campgrounds, show, a group gas station etc. In the middle there is the information you need to understand the trip you will see (the development of the park and its people and where they are from) -- the rest of the park, is just the way it should be - nature! We enjoyed our guided tour to Balcony House from where we left with a lot of information, and a lot of impressions - and all we had a very pleasant stay and it couldn't be better.

The park is as nice as Zion and Bryce - not so crowded, friendly service -- we just had a lot of fun.

10. Is there anything else you would like to tell us about your visit to Mesa Verde National Park?

- Speed limits are too low because passing is virtually impossible, and there are lots of campers, etc.

We enjoyed it tremendously - very impressive management; spectacular ruins and views. Our 3-year-old couldn't make it up the Balcony House (too high). It should be restricted to 6-years-olds + (plus).
